

NON-BINDING / FOR DISCUSSION ONLY

Namespace Architecture Indicative Transaction Framework

Sovereign Seven · Assurance Enclave · Namespace0

U1.ca invites qualified strategic counterparties to discuss selected namespace assets and architectural materials in the context of a potential exclusive licence, asset acquisition, portfolio transaction or negotiated strategic partnership.

This document is a preliminary framework for opening discussions. It is not an offer to sell, a licence grant, a representation of asset availability, or a binding commitment to negotiate. Any transaction is subject to mutual due diligence, negotiated terms and execution of definitive agreements.

1 / Potential transaction structures

Exclusive licence	Defined asset schedule, permitted uses, territory, duration, commercial terms, governance and exit provisions. Title remains with the licensor unless agreed otherwise.
Asset / portfolio acquisition	Transfer of specifically scheduled domains or related rights, subject to verification of rights and applicable registry/transfer requirements.
Strategic partnership	Joint commercialization, development or other negotiated structure with defined rights, governance and contribution obligations.

2 / Scope and asset schedules

Only specifically identified domain registrations, trademark or other intellectual-property rights (if any), documentation and deliverables set out in a mutually agreed written schedule would be in scope. The public website does not define a sale bundle. Public architecture diagrams describe a conceptual model and do not by themselves constitute assignable operational infrastructure.

Indicative scope may draw from the Sovereign Seven public identity set, the proposed protected Assurance Enclave identity set and selected Namespace0 naming primitives. Any included names, dependencies, exclusions and chain of title must be agreed individually.

3 / Status of underlying infrastructure

The architecture is conceptual. U1 makes no representation through this document that a DNS operator, anycast service, resolver network, registry, production control plane or DDoS mitigation infrastructure has been deployed. Deployment, compliance, security and operating responsibilities would require separate technical and commercial arrangements.

NON-BINDING / DISCOVERY FRAMEWORK

Proposed discovery sequence

4 / Initial engagement and due diligence

Introduction	Counterparty identifies its legal entity, representative, intended use case, transaction interest and preliminary asset scope.
Scope alignment	U1 and counterparty identify the assets and materials proposed for examination, plus any excluded assets.
Confidentiality	The parties may execute a separate mutual non-disclosure agreement before exchanging non-public information.
Verification	Subject to agreed confidentiality and appropriate restrictions: domain registration and provenance, possible third-party rights, registry eligibility, technical model, and dependencies.
Indicative proposal	The interested counterparty submits a non-binding proposal outlining assets, structure, consideration, conditions and timetable.
Definitive documents	Counsel negotiates transaction documents. No rights pass except under executed agreement and completion of specified conditions.

5 / Commercial terms and exclusivity

No price, minimum consideration, exclusivity period, transaction deadline, royalty, option payment or preferred bidder has been established by this document. Any exclusivity or other obligation must be separately negotiated and expressly accepted in a signed instrument.

6 / Legal and operational conditions

Any definitive transaction would address registered ownership, Canadian .ca eligibility and registry transfer rules where relevant, sanctions and regulatory compliance, any applicable third-party rights, security and confidentiality obligations, taxes, representations, warranties, indemnities, and responsibility for any future operation.

7 / Non-binding status

Neither party is obliged to disclose information, grant exclusivity, make an offer, sell, license, invest, or transact. No part of this document creates binding legal rights. Any confidentiality duties or exclusivity provisions require separate signed agreements. The parties should obtain independent legal, tax and technical advice.
